

AmRRON (American Redoubt Radio Operators Network) is a network of Preppers, Patriots and Redoubters who have volunteered to keep each other connected when other means of communications are unavailable or unreliable.

It is not always easy to know where to get started. To help you get on the right track, we put together a checklist showing how to get started as an active AmRRON member.

CHECKLIST for new AmRRON Operators:

- ✓ Visit the ‘about’ page and watch the video “Introduction to AmRRON” video!
- ✓ Watch “Introduction to the CH3 Project” video
- ✓ Join AmRRON (if you are not already a member) and you will be assigned an AmRRON Call Sign and will have access to the Member Directory.
- ✓ Print the Communications S.O.I. your communications binder so you know what frequency and/or channel to meet up on during an emergency or during practice nets.
- ✓ Check your comms equipment and update/purchase equipment if necessary
- ✓ If possible, study to obtain your Ham Technician License. Getting your Ham License will expand your communications options and network.
- ✓ Join or Start a Scheduled Net in your City/State to connect with other AmRRON operators and practice using your equipment.

Getting your “Comms Up” now and learning how to use your equipment and building a network will prepare you and your family to be connected in an event where standard communications fail. There are several helpful tools and articles on the AmRRON website. Welcome to AmRRON!

*If you are viewing this document hard copy, it is available at www.AmRRON.com under the “communications resources” tab with links to the items in the check list above.